EXTRAMURAL FUNDING

Increase diversity, foster inclusion, and close equity gaps among Black, Indigenous, and Hispanic/Latin(a/o/x) identifying Ph.D. (Role: Faculty Champion). Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. $206,510 (direct costs), $41,302 (indirect costs), $247,812 (total costs). Funding for 2023-2025. Served as faculty champion on behalf of UNLV to propose a Sloan Centers for Systemic Change (SCSC) project that aims to increase diversity, foster inclusion, and close equity gaps among Black, Indigenous, and Hispanic/Latin(a/o/x) identifying Ph.D. students in the physical sciences and engineering. Our specific goals include: 1) (re)design of graduate recruitment and admissions and a wholesale adoption of holistic admissions; 2) development of peer mentoring and support programming focused on graduate preparedness and increasing identity and belongingness; and 3) training for faculty in culturally responsive research supervision and mentorship to increase students' sense of relatedness, competence, and autonomy.

Interpersonal dynamics & sociocultural fit in STEM research apprenticeships. NSF-2301049. (Role: Co-PI). National Science Foundation (NSF). $783,362 (direct costs), $322,517 (indirect costs), $1,105,879 (total costs). Funding for 2024-2028. This research will advance the mentoring literature by illuminating the interpersonal context of STEM research apprenticeships. We sought funding to dive deeply into the interpersonal context of STEM research apprenticeships. We leverage a mixed-methods approach wherein best practices in quantitative methods (e.g., dyadic longitudinal designs) are used in a complementary fashion with qualitative methods to provide information about STEM research apprenticeships that is both comprehensive and nuanced.

The Neon Pacific Initiative: Placemaking, Community Engagement, and Asian American Studies at UNLV. (Role: Co-I). Mellon Foundation. $776,708 (direct costs), $0 (indirect costs), $776,708 (total costs). Funding for Fall 2023- Fall 2026. The Neon Pacific Initiative is a curriculum development project that aims to expand, enhance, and elevate the placemaking and public-facing scholarship activities happening in UNLV's Asian and Asian American Studies Program (AIS). Its purpose is to support place-based curricular development and collaborative public scholarship with Las Vegas' AAPI communities and, in doing so, create more ethnic studies and humanities educational and research opportunities for UNLV students.

Do responsible gambling practices explain associations among gambling motives, disordered gambling, and PTSD? Comparing Nevadan college students to U.S. adults. (Role: Co-PI). International Gaming Institute (IGI). $3,000 (direct costs), $0 (indirect costs), $3,000 (total costs). Funded research for 2022-2023 will investigate the mediating role of different responsible gambling behaviors and beliefs in the associations between PTSD symptoms, gambling motives, and gambling disorder severity and symptomology. The secondary aim is to establish current prevalence rates of responsible gambling practices that are nationally representative of the U.S. population, according to age, education, gender, race/ethnicity, and geographical region, since this information is presently unavailable in research databases.

Associations Between Problem Gambling and Other Problematic Behavioral Patterns in Nevadan College Students. (Role: Co-PI). International Gaming Institute (IGI). $3,000 (direct costs), $0 (indirect costs), $3,000 (total costs). Funded research for 2021-2022 examined how various problematic behaviors involving a specific substance or activity are currently associated with problem gambling in college students from Nevada. This study investigated several psychosocial factors that may contribute to problem gambling and its association with other problematic behaviors in this population.

The Links Between Problem Gambling & Video Gaming In Emerging Adulthood: An Examination of Student & Non-Student Populations. (Role: Co-PI). International Gaming Institute (IGI). $3,000 (direct costs), $0 (indirect costs), $3,000 (total costs). Funded research for 2020-2021. This study investigated the relationship between video gaming and gambling disorders for emerging adults.

INTRAMURAL FUNDING

Interpersonal Dynamics in STEM Research Apprenticeships. (Role: Co-PI). Faculty Top Tier Doctoral Graduate Research Assistantship Grant Program (TTDGRA). $63,000 (total costs). Funding for graduate student assistance for 2023-2026. This research takes an innovative approach to examine the relationship quality and interpersonal dynamics within student-mentor dyads.

2022 UNLV College of Liberal Arts Early Career Summer Research Funding. $7,500 (total costs). Summer research funding for assistant professors that show potential and promise for outstanding scholarship. Specifically, this funding was given for foundational work in racial microaggressions scholarship.

2022 National Center for Faculty Development and Diversity Research Funding. $5,050 (total costs). Funding for a faculty success workshop program specifically for the outstanding scholarship on microaggressions and behavioral addictions.
